A Tor image of a child porn video seems to be posted on Huyck's website. Inquiries A couple of years later, in April 2010, Detective Sergeant James Paterson from the Ontario Provincial Police's Internet Child Exploitation Unit was lead investigator on a case regarding Huyck and his alleged exploitation of another alleged victim. The OPP was able to track the IP address of an online party where the alleged victim was located, and the party's Internet provider contacted the OPP, revealing a possible lead to the possible victim. The search warrant police executed at the home revealed the following: an external hard drive containing more than 120,000 videos and 1,500 photos of child pornography; several laptops and a desktop computer which were locked; a router which contained a Tor e-mail account and a PayPal account (with another thousand dollars,); and nine SIM cards. Detective Sgt. James Paterson of the OPP Internet Child Exploitation Unit involved in investigating the case provided the following statements: Mr. Paterson was involved in the search warrant and the items seized. He obtained a search warrant, opened up the laptops, found child pornography videos, and requested that the electronic equipment be scanned. The items seized were turned over to the General Investigative Bureau, and are no longer a part of the investigation. He has never spoken to the identified, alleged victim of child pornography. All the videos found were viewed using the computers, not over the internet using any external source. The computers were seized. They were locked so nobody was able to access the files. They were primarily video files which featured child pornography, an occasional video of a child who appears to be clothed. There were also some images that depict child pornography that were not captured on any of the f678ea9f9e
